

Never Forget to Charge Your iPhone

Softorino releases a Revolutionary Solution to Keep iPhone Battery Alive.

Kiev, Ukraine—March 3, 2014—Because iPhone Battery Drain Can Be Frustrating—Softorino’s new app ‘iBetterCharge’ Notifies Users on Mac & Windows To Charge Their iPhone.

“Apple’s latest iPhones still don’t pack as much battery life as some of their nearest competitors. But with iBetterCharge, you can improve your iPhone’s battery life considerably.” said Peter Bondarevsky, Softorino’s Co-Founder.

Lightweight ‘iBetterCharge’ — lets Windows & Mac users get notified about their iPhone battery level without waking up their device. This can actually be extremely convenient for those who depend on their iPhone at work or just avoid the hassle of waking up their device to find out the battery level.

Here’s how it works — When iPhone battery level is low, iBetterCharge sends Floating notification bubbles to the desktop, which doesn’t distract users from whatever they’re busy with. All yours iOS devices whom are connected to your Wi-Fi network automatically send their battery level to iBetterCharge. That’s all there is to it.

iBetterCharge has its own design, but will be instantly familiar to the hundreds of millions of Mac & Windows users around the world. It also provides 4 different options for when to send low battery alerts. Softorino claims, the tiny app is “revolutionary” because differing from the typical Laptop and iPhone battery notifiers — there’s nothing in between. It’s available for Free on OS X & Windows.

Softorino Inc., a young and fast-growing European software company developing Windows & OS X software such as the freeware app with over 2.5 million downloads, ‘Folder Colorizer’, created to assign a different color to any folder on your system.
